The girls at a certain seaside resort on the New Jersey coast are not speaking to one of their number. They talk about her behind her back, and they say to each other that she is a forward minx, and that nobody would have thought it of her, she looked so young and innocent. This is how the trouble came about-it was all because there were but a very few young men present:

The girls had all remarked that fact, and they swung each other around in the mazy waltz and had quite a miserable time. One day the train came in and a young man, accompanied by a superb Irish setter, got off and registered at the hotel. One of the girls heard him making arrangements with the clerk for a room for the rest of the season, and then there was the greatest excitement.

With the bundle came a note from an old friend, which said: "Dear Will-I The girls hunted up their young brothers to see if they knew the new arrival, but he was known to none of them. They were at their wits' ends to find a way of becoming acquainted with these old togs. I dare say you'll be able to find some use for them." The bridethe new arrival, who kept to himself and smoked his pipe, and walked up and down the beach with his dog, silently communing with the sad sea waves. Finally they almost gave it up in depoor beggar who was able to make use of these old togs of yours. In fact, my dear boy, at the present moment these old togs of yours comprise my wedding trousseau. They're rather a quick fit, spair, when the aforesaid young woman shocked her sisters and the whole female colony by a stroke of genius.

It happened that she was the proprietor of a small fox terrier, about 6 months old. The little animal was not thought much of. He was rude and made a lot of noise, and wanted to fight every pet cat about the place. He had been in disgrace for some time, and his mistress was just about to give him away when one morning, as she was out on the beach with her dog, the young man and his dog came trotting along.

It was then that in some way or other the terrier unfastened the rope that held him fast to his mistress and ran howling fiercely after the young man and the Irish dog. The little terrier jumped at the setter's neck and the latter turned on him and was about to bite his head off, when the young man rushed to the rescue and returned the animal to his weeping mistress.

She was so overcome that he had to helpher to a shady seat, and then-well. while the other girls talk spitefully about her, she and the young man have glorious dances in the ballroom in the evening, and in the morning they and the two dogs, who are now the best of friends, go for long walks up the beach. —New York Evening Sun.

Working Girls' Lunch Clubs.

The working girls' lunch room is an institution in Chicago. Three have already been opened and have met with so much favor that probably the number will soon be increased. The first was opened by the Chicago alumnæ of Ogontz seminary, Philadelphia. Eighty of the alumnæ formed the association about a year ago. They hired two sunny rooms in the Pontiac building, which stands in the midst of the print-Miami rivers, Ohio, has long been a recognized means of subsistence to huning district. dreds of people in that region. A monthly payment of ten cents ento full membership. Instead of eating a cold lunch in the close workroom where she is employed all day, she may go to the clubroom, where easy chairs, lounges, books and a piano and all the conveniences for a restful and recreat ing hour await her. She may bring her luncheon with her, or for a small sum bny one, or she may bring a part and buy the rest—any way to suit pleasure and means. Homemade sandwiches or rolls or cake are sold for five cents. A bowl of good soup and three crackers or two rolls with meat cost five cents.

During the summer months ice crear at five cents is served, also iced tea. In the winter hot bouillon is furnished. From 11 to 2 o'clock daily, except Sunday, the rooms are opened, and there is an average daily attendance of 125. The rooms are not self supporting, but the dues of the alumnæ association more than cover the expenses. Connected with the rooms are classes in various departments for those girls who choos to avail themselves of them. The Ogontz girls do not consider that the benefits are all conferred on the girls and women who earn their support by day labor, for the young women of the alumnse association find a new life opened to them by this intercourse with romen who take life from a different point of view. The other two lunch clubs are the Ursula, which was started by the young women graduates from Miss Kirtland's school in Chicago, and the Wellwood club, started last fall as an outgrowth of the Wellwood Summer Home for Working Girls. This has a membership of 250 girls.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Some Dainty Hangings.

The work exhibited at the Chicago Society of Decorative Art includes quite a number of pretty and handsome hangings well worth description. One entailing comparatively little labor was worked entirely in shades of green, with Japanese gold thread introduced. The ground chosen was crinkled tapeatry of rather a dull metallic green, and the design was a bold spray of large leaves and flowers extending far down the curtain. Some of the leaves were embroidered solidly, and some were of green plush applied and worked in long and short stitch in silks either of a lighter or a darker shade than the plush, in order to gain variety of effect. The flowers had radiating lines extending from them rendered in green silk and gold thread worked side by side. The whole design was also outlined in the gold thread. The curtain was interlined with canton flannel to give it substance.

Another portiere was ecru colored silk,

The old lady, however, belonged to a numerous family, with extensive con-nections and intricate ramifications, and by reason of this fact she was enabled without difficulty to obtain each of the mementos from different persons. She quietly cultivated this odd fad for upward of fifty years, until the assortment, comprising all shapes and sizes of cast off teeth, filled a round, old fash-ioned collar box, holding perhaps a

New British Colunge.

People are beginning to expect an almost immediate issue of the new British coinage. As a matter of fact, the queen has still to decide upon the exact designs to be used, and up to now no specimens even have been struck. It is most improbable that the public will have any installment of the new money before Christmas or perhaps the new year. Those who have had an oppor-tunity of seeing the designs are of the opinion that they will be far superior in artistic merit to the jubile issue. But what the public are particularly anxious to have, in addition to artistic coinage, is one in which each coin's denomination may be read upon it. This should by no means be neglected,—Paris Amer-
